

Posting 1 — Senior Site Reliability Engineer, Fenrir Cyber Defence

About Us

Fenrir Cyber Defence builds mission-critical infrastructure for defence and financial-sector clients across the Nordics.

Responsibilities

- Own uptime and incident response for critical production systems
- Participate in on-call rotations, including nights and weekends
- Travel to client sites at short notice when incidents occur

Requirements

- 8+ years of infrastructure or systems engineering experience
- Comfortable working under pressure and being available outside regular hours
- Right to work in the EU

What We Offer

- Market-rate salary
- 25 days annual leave
- A close-knit, highly collaborative team

Our Culture

The team builds strong relationships beyond the office: over drinks after work, during five-a-side games, or while troubleshooting late into the evening. These connections play an important role in building trust and getting ahead in the team.

Posting 2 — Field Engineer, Continental Grid Energy

Based in Lyon, with deployments across the Alps and Eastern Europe

About Us

Continental Grid Energy maintains power infrastructure across remote regions of Europe. Our field engineers keep critical infrastructure running year-round.

Responsibilities

- Conduct inspections and repairs at remote substations
- Join deployments of two to four weeks, scheduled around project timelines

- Work independently in small crews
- Operate heavy equipment and work at height

Requirements

- Comfortable working outdoors in all weather, including alpine winters
- 5+ years of relevant field experience
- Valid EU driving licence
- Available for the full duration of each deployment, including weekends when required

What We Offer

- Field per diem and hazard pay, plus standard benefits
- Accommodation provided during deployments
- Small crews that work closely throughout each assignment

Our Culture

Field teams spend a lot of time together during deployments. People who enjoy a competitive environment, practical problem-solving and a fast pace tend to thrive here.

Posting 3 — VP of Product, Northfield Analytics (Amsterdam, hybrid, no client travel required)

About Us

Northfield Analytics is a fast-growing B2B data platform trusted by clients across the EU and UK. We're scaling quickly and looking for a VP of Product to help us get there.

Responsibilities

- Own the product roadmap and present it to the executive team and board
- Make judgment calls in ambiguous situations without waiting for full consensus
- Hold a position through extended stakeholder debate when you believe it's right
- Keep leadership informed of progress without needing to be asked

Requirements

- 10+ years of product leadership experience, ideally at a high-growth scale-up
- Comfortable operating with light documentation and figuring things out as you go
- A continuous track record in product roles, with no significant gaps
- Dutch at mother-tongue level and fluent English

What We Offer

- Competitive executive compensation, benchmarked to Amsterdam market rate
- A high-trust, high-autonomy environment
- The chance to shape a company at a pivotal moment

Our Culture

We keep process light and expect people to make their own work visible rather than waiting for a formal review cycle to surface it.

Posting 4 — Founding Community and Culture Lead, Loopz (Berlin, early-stage startup)

we're building the next big thing in social commerce and honestly we're just getting started a tiny team, huge energy, zero corporate vibes.

what you'll do

- be the face and voice of Loopz across our socials, basically our main character
- host our weekly community calls and IRL meetups (yes, you'll be smiling on camera a lot, get used to the ring light)
- keep the whole team's morale up, plan offsites and birthdays, and take care of the little things that make a startup feel like home

what we're looking for

- someone who's online and just gets internet culture, no explaining memes to you
- warm, bubbly energy that makes people feel instantly comfortable
- happy to wear a lot of hats, this isn't a "not my job" kind of place

what you get

- equity (we'll chat numbers, let's not make this weird, we pay fairly!)
- snacks, dog-friendly office, and a genuinely fun place to be every day
- a real seat at the table as an early hire the vibe no boring hierarchy here. we're a small found family building something we actually believe in, and we want someone who brings the same energy.
